D&D Next Conversion Notes: Storm over Neverwinter™

Conversion and Editing by Scott Fitzgerald Gray Development by Chris Sims

This document provides guidelines for playing Storm over Neverwinter as a D&D Next adventure using the rules in the current D&D Next playtest packet. The conversion information presented here allows you to substitute D&D Next ability checks and statistics blocks for the 4th Edition skill checks and statistics blocks in the adventure. Use the original text of the adventure for all other information.

The conversion notes are arranged by page and section. You can refer back to this document as you play, or you can annotate your copy of the adventure with references to the information in this document.

General Guidelines

In addition to the specific guidelines provided in this document, keep the following general points in mind.

Ability Checks: Where this conversion document refers to the difficulty of checks and tasks, the guidelines in the latest playtest packet are used to determine DCs for ability checks.

Trivial task: DC 5
Easy task: DC 10
Moderate task: DC 15
Hard task: DC 20

Perception: Whenever a Perception check is called for, a D&D Next character makes an Intelligence check if searching for something secret, or a Wisdom check if spotting or noticing a hidden creature.

Distance: Whenever distance or movement is given in squares, 1 square equals 5 feet.

Rests: D&D Next characters can take short rests whenever one is called for in the adventure. When an extended rest is called for, characters take a long rest.

Blocking Terrain: This refers to objects or features that cannot be moved through or typically climbed over.

Tactics: When a Tactics section describes a 4th Edition power that a D&D Next creature or NPC doesn't possess, substitute an action that the D&D Next creature possesses instead.

Bloodied: When a creature is bloodied, it has dropped below half its hit point maximum.

Number of Monsters: The conversion notes update the number of monsters of a particular type appearing during an encounter. Be sure to use the numbers from this conversion document rather than the numbers indicated in the original adventure.

Encounter Difficulty: You can adjust the difficulty of an encounter or customize it for larger or smaller groups. To do so, adjust the overall encounter XP by increasing or reducing the number of creatures, using the encounter building guidelines in the current D&D Next playtest packet.

Preparing for a Playtest at a Store

Each D&D Encounters season in 2013 can be run as either a 4th Edition adventure or a D&D Next playtest adventure. If you want to run Storm over Neverwinter, you'll need to work with a store currently running D&D Encounters to obtain the adventure materials necessary to run this adventure for a play group. Each store has specific guidelines on the details of running the adventure. To find a store, visit the Wizards Store & Event Locator web page at locator.wizards.com.

In addition to the store's requirements and the standard procedures for running a game in public, if you're DMing a D&D Encounters season as a D&D Next playtest, you'll want to keep the following things in mind.

- Pick up your materials prior to the first session of play. Stores should have the adventure about one week prior to the first session.
- Print out this conversion document. Stores do not have access to the conversion document or anything related to D&D Next rules, unless the organizer signed up as a playtester.
- Be ready to provide pregenerated characters.
 Some players at your table might not be signed up for the D&D Next playtest. These players must use pregenerated characters that you provide, and they must read and agree to the terms in the playtest agreement (see below).
- The D&D Encounters kit contains one-page playtest agreements for each player who has not signed up for the D&D Next playtest. Your organizer should provide you with these. The agreements do not have to be signed or returned. Simply ensure that each player has read the agreement and understands it before beginning to play.
- The first session is typically character creation.
 Use this time to help already-established playtesters create characters and to help players new to the playtest understand their pregenerated characters and the rules of D&D
 Next.
- Be sure to follow all the store organizer's instructions, and have fun!

Random Items

Use the following table to determine unspecified magic items, either by rolling randomly or choosing items as you see fit. See the Magic Items document in the most recent D&D Next playtest for more information, and to determine weapon and armor types, add details to items, and so on.

Feel free to simply choose magic items from the playtest document rather than using the table, or to reduce the number of magic items gained in the adventure to suit your campaign.

TREASURE TABLE

d20 Result

- 1 +1 armor
- 2 +1 weapon
- 3 Ring of protection
- 4 Wand of magic missiles
- 5 Ring of feather falling
- 6 Spellguard shield
- 7 Potion of healing
- 8 Potion of heroism
- 9 Potion of invisibility
- 10 Roll twice more (reroll if 20 comes up again)

Advancement

As with the 4th Edition version of the adventure, this conversion uses an accelerated XP award system to allow players to run their characters at a succession of levels. At the end of each session, award XP to the characters as noted in the conversion document.

Session 0: Character Creation

Instead of creating characters using 4th Edition materials, ask the players to create 3rd-level characters using the material found in the most recent D&D Next playtest. Existing 3rd-level D&D Next characters can also be used.

Newly created characters above 1st level can start with appropriate wealth and can possess common magic items at your discretion.

If you and the players wish to do so, you can treat D&D Next characters as if they had taken part in the D&D ENCOUNTERS season Lost Crown of Neverwinter. These "heroes of Neverwinter" gain a +2 bonus to Charisma checks to influence natives of the city, except Lady Nidris and the enemies in this adventure.

Neverwinter Themes

D&D Next character backgrounds can be used in place of character themes. Neverwinter's status as a wide-open frontier city makes the bounty hunter, charlatan, guide, guild thief, noble, soldier, and spy character backgrounds particularly appropriate.

Extra Time?

Combat in D&D Next can run more quickly than in 4th Edition. This season of D&D Encounters was designed with a 4th Edition timeframe in mind. As a result, it's possibly that a D&D Next session finishes much earlier than its counterpart.

If you have extra time in your D&D Next sessions, consider adding an encounter or some additional exploration or roleplaying opportunities. You can pick up the Neverwinter™ Campaign Setting and use the nonplayer characters (NPCs) from that book or from page 8 of Storm over Neverwinter. Here are a few diversions to fill out your session:

- Session 1: The characters must chase some of the kidnappers through the streets and battle them on the rooftops of Neverwinter.
- Session 2: After combat, the characters are summoned by Lord Neverember to discuss their actions.
- Session 3: A group of thugs breaks into the House of Knowledge to steal copies of records from Helm's Hold.
 The characters must stop them or track them down.
- Session 3 or 4: Lady Sala Nidris asks the heroes to recover a remedy for her son, which she believes will alleviate any remaining trauma to her son from his encounter with the Ashmadai.
- Session 4: Vargas relays his suspicions about the Ashmadai to the party and sends them on a wild goose chase to one of the Ashmadai safehouses.
- Session 5: Assassins hired by Vargas attempt to kill the characters on their way to Helm's Hold.
- Session 6 or 7: The characters must battle additional enemies in the staircases or must climb the outside of the cathedral to ascend.
- Session 8: The party is summoned before Lord Neverember to explain what happened at Helm's Hold.

Session 1: Lady in Peril

When you play this session of the adventure, make the following changes and additions as indicated.

Denizens of the Moonstone

Liset Cheldar: A hard Wisdom check suggests that Liset is watchful for something.

Inn Services

In addition to mundane items, Nidris sells potions of healing at the normal price of 50 gp.

Tavern Tales

To learn one of the noted rumors, a character can spend 1 gp, or can make an easy Wisdom or Charisma check.

Features of the Area

A creature that goes over the edge of the earthmote can make an easy Strength check to climb back up. Climbing the chains from the base of the earthmote is an easy Strength task.

Bar: A creature can scramble onto the bar by using 10 feet of movement, or can ignore the movement cost with an easy Strength or Dexterity check.

Patrons: Any customer engaged in combat has AC 10 and 5 hit points, and makes checks and saves with a +0 modifier.

Windows: A window can be broken open with an easy Strength check or a successful attack against AC 10 that deals damage.

Conclusion

Ashmadai: A character who inspects the Ashmadai cultists notices the mud on their boots with an easy Intelligence or Wisdom check. A second easy Intelligence or Wisdom check identifies the mud.

Reward

Each character gains 650 XP for this session. Treasure: Together, the cultists carry coins and jewelry worth 40 gp per character. The characters earn another 5 gp each if they escort Nidris to her house.

Session 2: Lost Boy

When you play this session of the adventure, make the following changes and additions as indicated.

Clues in the House

Blacklake Smell: A moderate Wisdom check identifies the faint smell of rotting fish and saltwater. A subsequent moderate Intelligence or Wisdom check determines that the smell resembles the Blacklake docks.

Blacklake Mud: A character can make a moderate Intelligence or Wisdom check to identify the mud. Identifying the hobnailed boot prints is a moderate Intelligence task. Identifying the softer-edged shoe prints is a hard Intelligence task.

Fallen Guard: A hard Intelligence or Wisdom check recognizes Vees's wound as originating from a lightning bolt. A hard Wisdom check or any healing magic makes Vees strong enough to speak.

Senseless Seneschal: A moderate Wisdom check or any healing magic treats Talzu's concussion.

Servant Staff: An easy Charisma check can calm or intimidate the terrified house staff into describing their ordeal.

Heading for the Docks

If the characters don't already know to head for the docks, tracking the cultists is a moderate Intelligence or Wisdom task. If you wish to improvise a scene involving more clues and leads, use easy and moderate DCs for additional checks.

Ashmadai Safe House

Stealth: To sneak in undetected, all the characters must make Dexterity checks contested by the sentries' Wisdom checks.

Talk: Tricking or frightening the sentries is a hard Charisma task, but any attempt at diplomacy automatically fails. If the first check is successful, a second hard Charisma check is necessary to gain access to the sewer entrance.

Vargas: Elden Vargas uses dimension door to teleport away after directing the Ashmadai to kill the characters. If the characters were hidden, they remain hidden from the sentries even after Vargas detects them.

Using diplomacy to do so is an easy Charisma task, while attempting to bluff or intimidate a guard is a moderate Charisma task. A successful check grants a +2 bonus to subsequent checks to convince other soldiers.

Each character gains 1,250 XP for this session.

Treasure: If the combat ends with the characters on good terms with the Mintarn soldiers, each character earns 25 gp plus 5 gp per soldier won over during the fight. Harrag offers each character a 25 gp reward.

Session 4: The Ashmadai Strike Back

When you play this session of the adventure, make the following changes and additions as indicated.

When the adventurers meet Darla, the character who makes the highest Wisdom check realizes that the girl saw another group spying on the party during previous battles.

Darla is willing to share her information for 5 gp. Convincing her to share it without payment requires a moderate Charisma check. A character with the guild thief background can reveal a connection to the Dead Rats gang to gain a +2 bonus to this check.

Night of Madness

Use moderate and hard skill checks in the miniencounters.

- 1. Charisma checks allow the characters to talk down the dominated ruffian. Seeking out a watch patrol is an Intelligence or Wisdom task.
- 2. Stopping the looters or influencing nearby citizens to do so is a Charisma task.
- 3. Physically stopping the runaway wagon is a Strength or Dexterity task. Calming the horse and driver is a Wisdom or Charisma task.
- 4. Wisdom checks or healing magic can be used to help Chadal recover and calm down. Intelligence checks can identify the arcane nature of his hellfire burns.

If statistics blocks are needed for the miniencounters, use the dominated ruffian from the "Belly of the Beast" encounter in this document, and replace the looter with the human commoner from the Bestiary.

When the characters arrive at Elden Vargas's house, an easy Intelligence or Wisdom check identifies its owner.

War Wizard's Duel

Checking on Contacts

- 1. Lady Nidris offers the characters 10 gp each if they will deliver a letter to Zan in Helm's Hold.
- 2. General Sabine offers the characters Muln Horan's +1 guardian weapon if they listen to her story.
- 4. Unlocking Elden Vargas's house is a hard Dexterity task.

Plea from Helm's Hold

When the characters approach the cathedral doors and are ordered back by the priests, an easy Intelligence or Wisdom check notes the other robed figures lurking behind arrow slits near the gate.

Breaking In: A character knows of the back door to the cathedral with a moderate Intelligence check, or can learn that information from a member of the crowd with an easy Charisma check.

To sneak undetected past a sentry, all the characters must make Dexterity checks contested by the sentries' Wisdom checks. Opening the locked gate is a hard Strength or Dexterity task.

A character knows of the sun room windows with a hard Intelligence check, or can notice them with an easy Intelligence or Wisdom check. Forcing a window open is a moderate Strength task or a hard Dexterity task. The patients in the sun room must then be pacified with a hard Charisma check. A character who attempts to intimidate the patients can instead make an easy Charisma check.

Bluffing the Guards: One character must make a hard Charisma check to present the party to the guards. All the characters must then make easy Charisma checks to play the part of victims needing treatment. If half or more of the characters succeed on this group check, the gate guards let them in.

Using the Mob: It takes three moderate Charisma checks to incite the townsfolk into storming the gates.

Using the Storm

Channel Lightning: As an action, a character with knowledge of arcana can make a moderate Intelligence check to channel the power of the storm. With a successful check, the character can direct the storm against a creature within 50 feet of him or her, forcing that creature to make a DC 14 Dexterity saving throw or take 9 (2d8) lightning damage and 4 (1d8) thunder damage.

If Karis fails the save against this lightning four times, her ritual is disrupted and she takes 5 (1d10) damage.

As an action, a character that can cast spells can attempt a hard Intelligence check to disconnect Karis from the storm without attacking her. With a successful check, her ritual is disrupted and her current hit points drop to 26 if they are not already lower.

Ride the Winds: A creature that is blown back onto the roof lands 20 feet from the point where it fell, takes 7 (2d6) damage, and falls prone. A creature that succeeds on a moderate Strength or Dexterity saving throw takes half damage and lands standing. A creature that succeeds on a hard saving throw can ride the winds, moving to a location of its choice (including in midair to attack a flying opponent), then landing on the roof and taking no damage.

Development

Whenever Elden Vargas has 22 or fewer hit points, he gains the following trait.

Hellfire Aura: Any enemy within 15 feet of Elden Vargas that hits him with an attack during his turn takes 5 fire damage.

If Elden Vargas dies and Karis Vargas is still alive, Karis claims Elden's lightning spear. Replace her storm touch attack with Elden's lightning spear attack.

If Elden is dead, Karis can be made to surrender with three hard Charisma checks.

If Karis dies and Elden is still alive, he breaks his lightning spear, making the ranged version of that attack against all creatures within 50 feet of him. Until the end of the encounter, Elden then takes a –2 penalty to AC and saving throws, gains a +5 bonus to damage rolls, and cannot make lightning spear attacks.

Reward

Each character gains 3,250 XP for this session. Treasure: The City of Neverwinter rewards the Treasure: The City of Neverwinter rewards the party with 1,000 gp for dealing with the threat of the Ashmadai and ending the storm. If Elden Vargas's lightning spear was not broken and is claimed by the characters, treat it as having the properties of a flame tongue longsword but dealing lightning damage.
